

GASLINE

DECEMBER 2018 EDITION

Welcome to the Gasline Newsletter

Published monthly by LPG and Gas Associations of New Zealand

Gasline is published regularly as part of the industry's efforts to encourage the direct use of natural gas and LPG into households and small businesses.

Using natural gas and LPG as a direct energy source offers numerous cost, environmental and energy efficiency benefits. Gas New Zealand hopes to educate consumers and policy makers about the many advantages of making wider use of this strategic energy asset.

Claude the cat a success

We rely a lot on electricity and gas, but some of our habits around using them aren't always the smartest – or safest.

WorkSafe's Energy Safety team facilitates the safe supply and use of gas and electricity, but they have a broader mandate than just workplaces. They work with both the public and industry to keep people and property safe from the dangers of electricity and gas.

WorkSafe's new Head of High Hazards, Energy and Public Safety – taking on a new adventure

"I want to have a country that is confident in its safety, and New Zealanders have a justified reassurance that things are being well managed."

That's the message from WorkSafe's recently appointed Head of High Hazards, Energy and Public Safety in its operations group, Tony Hetherington.

LPG has a role to play in NZ's zero-carbon future, World LPG Association says

"LPG is an exceptional fuel that has an important role to play in New Zealand's transition to a low-carbon future."

That's the message from World LPG Association (WLPGA) director, David Tyler, as he presented at the recent GASNZ Industry Forum.

World Gas Conference shows NZ as out of touch

New Zealand has a role to play in helping the world to decarbonise, but the ban on issuing new exploration permits outside of onshore Taranaki is likely to prevent us from being able to do so.

That's the message from the Director of Sector & Equity Research at Woodward Partners, John Kidd, in his debrief of the World Gas Conference in Washington DC.
